Introduction to Course /Course Description

Sports has been part of our lives for as long as human civilization has existed and has provided both recreation to those who indulged in it and entertainment to its audiences. In its modern avatar, the world of sport has a larger-than-life presence with an industry that spans sports goods, events, sponsorships, celebrity players, and viewership and followership that runs into billions of people. It is a space that sees elite athletes to test the limits of human endurance and an equally adept and agile set of managers of sport whose continuous endeavor is to bring to sports lovers the most exciting events presented in ways to match the audiences' ever evolving expectations. Within our country sport is an emerging field and has evolved from being a staid, state-run industry to one that has attracted professional talent in recent years. The industry is set to grow further with increasing interest in the performance of Indian sportspersons and an increasing involvement in sports by Indians, including but not limited to considering sports as a viable career option by the hitherto conservative Indian middle-class. This course presents to its participants all facets of Sports Marketing and Management.
